BIRMINGHAM, AL – The Aeroshell Aerobatic Team is pleased to announce the addition of Bryan Regan as our newest member. Regan, former team lead of the Red Baron Pizza Squadron, will be stepping in to fill the role of interim team lead while Alan Henley, Team Founder and team lead recovers from a serious injury he sustained in late July.

“I am glad to be able to step in and help”, Regan said. “While Alan fights his battle to recover, it’s a great feeling to jump in and help this team keep going. I am looking forward to the experience. We’ll just take it one show at a time.”

Regan will make his AeroShell Team debut at the North Georgia Transportation Expo Air Show in Rome, Georgia on September 13th and 14th. Regan is no newcomer to the airshow family. He flew with the Red Barons from 1996 to 2007, and held the lead position from 2003 until the team was discontinued by Red Baron Pizza in 2007. A skilled formation pilot, Regan flew the Boeing A75 450, better known as the “Stearman” in every position for that team, and is a great choice to now lead the AeroShell Aerobatic Team.

Alan Henley is quick to voice his support for Bryan. “We are really excited to have him on board. Bryan is a tremendous asset to our team, and will easily carry out the professionalism and quality that the AeroShell Aerobatic Team is known for.” Henley was injured in late July in a fall at his home which resulted in his being paralyzed from the chest down. He is currently in rehabilitation at the Spain Rehabilitation Spinal Cord Injury Unit in Birmingham, Alabama.

More information is forthcoming on the team website, www.naat.net. A personal message from Alan and Jennifer Henley is available on www.caringbridge.org/alanhenley.
